Hillel Connections

Hillel Connections is a faith-based initiative inspired at the University of Alabama that is designed to connect Jewish college students with cities in Alabama, initially Birmingham, giving them opportunities to develop personal, mentoring, and professional relationships. Most students know little of the cultural, social, religious or employment opportunities in our "Magic City". To bridge this gap, the Hillel Connections program links students personally with a local family and religious community, providing long-term relationships throughout their collegiate years and beyond. Options for students range from connecting with a local "family friend", networking to link with a professional mentor, applying for our eight week summer internship, and possibly finding that perfect job after graduation!
